30th Sunday in Ordinary Time

By witnessing to the Good News, we share God's love.

The opponents of Jesus just won't give up! Last week, they tried to trip him up on the sticky question of taxes to Caesar. Today is a cunning attempt to lead him into a hair-splitting debate and lose him in the wilderness of the subtleties of the Mosaic Law! It is noteworthy that Matthew uses the same Greek word here – to test – as when describing Jesus' earlier confrontation with Satan in the desert. Clearly, he wants us to understand that those who test Jesus are in league with, or at least unwittingly doing, the work of Satan.

Matthew sets the scene well! A Pharisee – a lawyer – asks Jesus which of the commandments is the greatest. His response does not seek to set aside the Law, but instead to interpret it more fully. For Jesus, the greatest commandment is found in Deuteronomy: "You shall love the Lord, your God, with your whole heart, and with your whole being, and with your whole strength" (6:5).

Jesus' answer emphasizes the centrality of love – a cord that binds together the human heart and soul and directs us toward God.

While asked for only one commandment, Jesus adds a second, quoting from Leviticus, which he says is equal to and inseparable from the first: "You shall love your neighbor as yourself" (19:18). Everything, he says, hangs on these two interrelated commandments. Like a door on two hinges that will not open or close properly if out of alignment, so, too, our lives if we do not love God and our neighbor. Jesus is not discounting any other commandments, but simply emphasizing that these two are foundational.

So what does this declaration mean for us today? As we struggle to live the Christian life, we can so easily compartmentalize love of God and love of neighbor. Sometimes, it may seem easier to love God than to love our neighbor. But, as Jesus proclaims, these two loves cannot be separated.

By linking this Gospel with a practical reading from Exodus, we are reminded that this love is more than a warm and fuzzy feeling. Out of Israel's experience of slavery in Egypt, there emerged the reality of a God who is compassionate and protective of the weak. No one is to take advantage of them or to imprison them in a relentless cycle of dependence. How challenging these ancient words and this ethical wisdom can sound today.

Paul confirms this teaching by reminding the Thessalonians of their fidelity to Christ. He rejoices with them because they have remained steadfast and active in faith. For them, faith is more than a passing fad. Clearly, they have recognized the word of God in Paul's preaching, and through the lived example of their lives, have now become ministers of the Gospel to others within their community and beyond. Awaiting the return of Christ, they have become people of hope, bringing the combined love of God and neighbor to others.

May we, too, be a people of hope – witnessing the Gospel to others and sharing God's love.

Saint of the Week

Pope St. John XXIII

Angelo Roncalli was born in the small town of Sotto il Monte in Italy in 1881. He was the fourth of 14 children whose parents were sharecroppers. Eventually he became Pope John XXIII, one of the most influential Popes in history.

Angelo was ordained a priest shortly after 1900, and earned a doctorate in theology. He worked as the secretary to a bishop early in his priesthood. He was later drafted into the Italian army during World War I as a chaplain and stretcher-bearer.

In 1925 Father Roncalli was summoned to the Vatican and appointed Apostolic Visitor to Bulgaria. Later he was sent to Turkey and Greece. After being made an Archbishop, Roncalli worked during World War II to save thousands of Jews from death. After the war he was named a "Righteous Gentile." He was later sent to France as Papal Nuncio and later to Venice.

In 1958 Roncalli was elected Pope to succeed to Pope Pius XII. He surprised everyone when, at the age of 77 and in office only a short time, announced the Second Vatican Council would be convened to renew the Church and "open the windows." This Ecumenical Council would change forever the course of the Church, its relations with other religions, liturgical practices, and Catholic life in general. Sadly, he was diagnosed with stomach cancer after the opening of the Council, and never lived to see its conclusion. He died on June 3, 1963.

Pope John is known for his wonderful sense of humor. He was quick to tell jokes, even poking fun at his own rotund self and his large nose. "Good Pope John" was the first Pope to be named Time Magazine's Man of the Year in 1963. He was a prayerful and saintly man, and after his death miracles began to be attributed to him. When his body was exhumed for the process of beatification in the year 2000, he was found to be incorrupt. His body was put on display in St. Peter's Basilica. He was canonized in 2014 by Pope Francis. He is the patron saint of papal delegates and of Vatican II.

Good Pope John, watch over our Church and pray that we might live without divisions, intent only on seeking holiness.
